IMPROVED COTTON.

Some Experiments Not Previously Reported.

In my rounds through the county I came across some cotton grown from the improved cotton seed distributed by The Eagle last spring, and which had not been previously reported. Enough is known now to say positively that Sure Fruit is an excellent cotton to plant. Some favorable and a few unfavorable reports come from the other kinds, but all reports from Sure Fruit claim it to be a splendid cotton for this section.

LOWRY'S PROLIFIC.

W. J. Lawless of Kurten showed The Eagle reporter his patch of Lowry Prolific cotton. He planted it very late, in fact later than any other of his cotton, and never plowed it but once. It is now about waist high and is the fullest cotton he has. Mr. Lawless says it has the best lint he ever saw, saying it is something similar to Long Staple. He believes that if the seed was planted on good ground, it would yield a bale and a half per acre. It has a small boll and is hard to pick. Mr. Lawless will save his seed and give it a fair trial next season.

LOWRY'S PROLIFIC.

Mr. L. D. McGee of Sugar Hill planted the Lowry Prolific and will get 200 pounds off one-fifth of an acre. The Prolific was planted later than his Big Boll Cotton, but will turn out as well as the other. It has a small boll but a good deal more fruit on it than the Big Boll. Mr. McGee will save his seed and try them again next year.

SURE FRUIT.

Mr. J. M. Sutton planted Sure Fruit Cotton Seed on May the 10th. It was very dry at that time, but the cotton came up and was doing well at the time of the flood, and as full of blooms as it could be, but the big rains caused it to throw off everything. The cotton is about head high and is still making, while the Jones cotton growing near it is only waist high and burned up. There has not been but one rain on it since the flood. Mr. Sutton says he thinks this cotton will make a bale per acre where other cotton would make two thirds of a bale. He will save the seed and plant again next year and give it a fair trial, for he believes it to be the only cotton.

LEE-GOODYEAR.

A Pretty Wedding at Rock Sunday Afternoon.

Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Rock Prairie school house Dr. G. F. Lee and Miss Bernice Goodyear were united in marriage by Rev. S. C. Martin. The attendants were Mr. Irvin Barron and Miss Dena Soles, Mr. Glenn Soles and Miss Janie Royder. There was a large assemblage of admiring friends present to witness the ceremony. After the wedding an elegant supper was tendered the happy young couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Barron.

Both the young people whose lives are thus united have resided in that part of the county a number of years. They are well known and very popular, and have been the recipients of the heartiest congratulations in which the Eagle joins. Dr. Lee is a well known physician. They will make their home on Rock Prairie.

A Soap Talk!

DO YOU KNOW how to judge a pure soap? A soap to be just right must leave the skin as before using, and to do this it must be neutral—no excess of alkali. We have made soaps, especially toilet and medicinal, a study, so you take no risk in buying them of me—no higher than elsewhere. We have just received a new stock of delightful soaps, including Crushed Roses, Crushed Lillies, Crushed Lilacs, Crushed Violets and the well-known La Tosca. These goods are the very best, and cannot help please the most fastidious. Come to see me when you need SOAP.

We do not try to impress the public how cheap we can prepare a prescription; rather how well, how true, how accurate. Our prices please too. Bring them to me and the results will bring you back again.

UNPRECEDENTED.

Embrella Returned to an Army from Arizona the Sea.

New York Times: There is a prevailing impression abroad to the effect that the ordinary man will not recognize property rights so far as embrellas are concerned. Prof. Corrigan of the St. Matthew School, Conshohocken, is ready with documentary evidence to show that at least one man in the world is honest in his views on embrellas. Recently he received a bundle decorated with many foreign labels, accompanied by the following letter: "Florence, Italy, Oct. 2, 1898.—Dear Sir: While stopping at the Florence house I found this umbrella in the wardrobe of my room. On the handle I saw the initials 'B. F. C.', and after seeing the entry 'B. F. Corrigan, Conshohocken, Penn., U. S. A.' on the register, I came to the conclusion that you were the owner. I have kept the umbrella in my possession over a year, and one day accidentally broke the former handle, which you will see I have replaced. I hope it will prove just as serviceable as its predecessor. Hoping to hear of its arrival in good condition, I remain, yours truly, Alfred Campe. After Jan.
1, 1899, Genoa, Italy." Prof. Corrigan left the umbrella in question in Florence about two years ago. As it was well cared for by the finder and carefully packed before being shipped, the umbrella will now take a new lease of life with its rightful owner.

IRVING'S NOBLE CHARITY.

His Gift in Charitable Causes Aggregate More Than $150,000.

M. A. P. is authority for the statement that Sir Henry Irving is stated to have given away the enormous sum of $30,000 in charity during the last thirty years. It is probable that the figure is rather under the mark than otherwise. Can one wonder that there is one man on earth who is so beloved by his professional associates as is the Lyceum chief? Here is the story of one of the hundreds of instances in which Sir Henry has exercised a noble and disinterested generosity. One night, during a little supper given by Sir Henry to a few friends, a letter from a broken-down French actor was placed in his hand. The writer begged Sir Henry to appear at the performance to be given in Paris in his (the actor's) behalf. A look that we all know passed over the face of Sir Henry as he perused the letter. Slowly he read it again. "Poor fellow! Poor fellow!" he said. Then, turning to his secretary, after a pause, he hurriedly whispered: "Impossible to go to Paris.
Send $50." The actor was unknown to Sir Henry; nevertheless, one can well believe the anecdote.

Chinese Match Makers.

In China the matchmaker or "go-between" is a very important factor in domestic life. He it is who casts his watchful eye around that he may find suitable husbands for the daughters or his acquaintances, and then approaches the parents with due circumspection as well as a good deal of tact and diplomacy. To the family of the young man he narrates the good qualities, beauty and amiability of a certain young girl; then he makes a visit to her father and dwells upon the riches, learning and wisdom of a youth he knows. If he finds both sides willing to consider the question, he plies back and forth between them with all the sagacity of a man anxious to drive a good bargain. He knows that if he succeeds he will get a nice little fee from each family, and so he paints the many charms of the young couple in glowing terms. He is not always truthful, and sometimes the bridegroom, who is not allowed to see his future wife before the ceremony, finds that after the red cloth and veil are removed he is married to an ugly old crone. These instances of bad faith on the part of the "go-between" are fortunately rare, and usually he exhibits much discretion in his matings. A frequent sight to be met with in the narrow little Chinese streets is a bride, in her sedan chair of crimson and gold, hung with garlands of flowers, being borne to the home of the husband she has never seen. The attendants beat loudly upon drums and tom-toms, and fire off innumerable crackers, but even that din does not drown the shrill wailing of the unhappy bride.

Tennyson's Humility.

The poet Tennyson was gifted with the grace of humility. His letters disclose his dissatisfaction with himself and his achievements. He pitched his ideals high, and he knew none more clearly, when he failed to grasp what he had reached after. An anecdote contributed by the duke of Argyll and quoted by Miss Cary in her volume, "Tennyson," exhibits the poet's humility. "The first words I heard him utter," says the duke, "remain indelibly impressed upon my memory. On being introduced to him at an evening party in the house of Lord Joan Russell, I said, perhaps with some emotion: 'I am so glad to know you!' Not in the tone of voice of a mere conventional reply, but in the accents of sincere humility, he answered: 'You won't find much in me—after all.'"

Gen. Miller's Future Home.

It is probable that Gen. Miller, who is now at Rio, will erect a summer residence in Stockbridge, Mass. Relatives of Gen. Miller in that village have received letters from him in which he announces his intention of taking up a residence in the village of his nativity.

THE "ERUDITE" WOMAN.

The Part the Blue-Stocking Plays in the World.

The Rev. Dr. E. Winchester Donald of Trinity is credited with the statement that he does not like the women's colleges, because "the moment a woman becomes erudite, as she does after the average college course, she becomes a blue-stocking and apart from the rest of society. And consequently she does not accomplish the good which she might otherwise." We assume at once that the reverend doctor has been incorrectly reported, as so often happens in the anniversary season, and also in that passage representing him as complimentary to the school of which he was speaking, because, while it is a sort of women's college, it is not enough of a college to hurt anybody, says the Boston Transcript. But the mischief a mistaking reporter, multiplied by a condensing editor, may do is something terrible for reputations. What Dr.
Donald knows as well as anybody is that even a woman becomes erudite—that is, learned, cultivated, literally "free from rudeness"—she becomes capable of understanding the larger meaning of life. That she becomes in a sense apart from the rest of society is true, because she becomes the leaven of the lump. She becomes gifted with finer sensibilities, with keener perceptions, with higher ideals, with an inward striving for the things which are higher and better than pertain to the rest of society. That is, preliminary that she has had the right sort of college education. Of course, as the educated man, even when a minister may be sometimes a brute or a prig, so the educated woman may sometimes become a blue-stocking, a terror, or a prig of the feminine gender, but that is not the prevailing tendency of modern college education in the higher women's colleges. A young woman comes out of the institution with a better equipment for the battle of life, if she must become a fighter, and, to reverse the reporter's idea of Dr. Donald's idea, she accomplishes a good which she might not otherwise. And when she becomes a wife and a mother, and plans that the child by her side shall have the best that a woman's college can afford in the way of education, does anybody believe that she is any the worse for looking back with a thrill of pleasure toward her own school days in the higher educational institution for women? And the woman who is to make her own way in the world, in some of the new spheres of action which it is the greatest glory of the century to be opening to such women, the one who is never to know the touch of a baby hand that is a part of her own life, is she any the worse off for having had the highest ideals, the best training, the most thorough preparation that women's colleges can give? The trouble with the report of Dr. Donald's remarks is that it makes him out to have got his premises wrong. The college girl does not necessarily become a blue stocking. And in the next place the blue stocking plays a part in the world's economy just the same as the woman who has had just enough of an education to fit the requirements of the heroines of Jane Austen's novels.

A Floating Fresh Air Hospital.

For twenty years a floating hospital has regularly carried out from New York each morning a load of infants, to breathe the pure air which it is difficult for them to obtain in the tenements in which they dwell. On this ship are a few cots and beds for "cases" too ill to sit outside, but the great mass of the patients sit or play on deck, breathing fresh air and enjoying sea breezes. Then feeding-time comes round, and both the children and the mothers—for no infants come without their mothers—get, for once, a good meal. Bathing is another great feature, and on the lower deck of the floating hospital baths of various sorts are supplied, so that the little ones return after their outing with clean skins and full stomachs, with bodies revived by the sea air and minds refreshed by new sights which they will not readily forget.

Sunshine in Europe.

According to a recent report issued by the French bureau of agriculture, Spain, and not Italy, should have the adjective "sunny" placed before it. On the average, it is said, Spain enjoys about 3,000 hours of sunshine a year, while Italy has 2,300. France has almost as much sunshine as Italy, her figures being 2,200. Germany has at her disposal no more than 1,700 hours; while England, the land of fogs, has to get along with 1,400, less than half of Spain's amount.

The Beauty of It.

Muggins—"What have you there—Browning? You don't mean to say you enjoy reading that stuff? Sweet-low—"Stuff? Why, sir, it is beautiful." Muggins—"But do you really understand what he is driving at?" Sweetlow—"Of course I don't. That's the beauty of his writings."—Boston
